

Tom Williams

I first started hunting Ruffed Grouse in Upstate New York when I was 17 years old. I have been an active hunter for more than 50 years. I have hunted plains animals in Africa in addition to hunting Caribou in Alaska, Elk in New Mexico, Whitetail Deer in Maine, Texas, New York and Missouri.

My real passion is hunting Upland Game Birds. I have hunted Ruffed Grouse in Maine, North Carolina and New York; Pheasant in South Dakota and Bobwhite Quail in Missouri, Alabama and Georgia.

What I enjoy most about hunting, in addition to experiencing some of the beautiful countryside, is sitting in the woods before the sun comes up and listening and watching “The woods come alive.” Bonus is having my wife Elaine with me during my hunts in Africa.
